Why a Sub-I?

Orthopedic surgery is one of the most competitive specialties to apply as a medical student. In March 2023, 1,425 applicants applied for 899 orthopedic surgery residency spots, resulting in a 63.1% acceptance rate. Sub-I's have emerged as a valuable avenue for medical students to not only delve into the specifics of different programs but also to demonstrate their capabilities through a month-long residency audition. Data supports just how pivotal a Sub-I's role is, with program directors in one study ranking them as the second most influential factor for matching into a program. Nevertheless, many prospective MS4s/OMS4s express a sense of unpreparedness. MSOS's pre-symposium survey of the second annual MSOS symposium revealed that just 33% of students felt adequately prepared to go on their orthopedic Sub-I's. As a result, MSOS set out to establish the Sub-I education summit, aimed at preparing rising M4s for their upcoming away rotations .

Welcome

Welcome to the Inaugural Medical Student Orthopedic Society (MSOS) Sub-I Summit. The education committee, chairs, and advisors have worked diligently to prepare this comprehensive program.

This Sub-I Summit aims to provide rising 4th-year medical students with information and resources to help them prepare for their orthopedic surgery away rotations. This free and virtual event is structured to help students succeed in the three high-yield environments of orthopedic surgery away rotations: on-call, the operating room, and clinic. Additionally, this event will highlight OrthoACCESS with an accompanying session on how to best utilize their free resources. We hope students will feel more prepared and know how to prepare for their upcoming orthopedic away rotations following this summit

Thank you to everyone who have made this event possible!
